rections for doing so: Sponge the lace carefully with gin, and wind it around a bottle to dry, for if touched with an iron is would look glossy and flattened. Some people fill the bottle with warm water, which causes the lace to dry more quickly. It must not be placed near the fire, as it would give it a rusty appearance.

The worst thing a man can do in such weather as this is to give up and grunt. Of course it's hot and of course it's uncomfortable, but does grunting cool it? As a man's mind is, so will his body be. Rise early, start the day good-naturedly, moderate your transports, avoid extremes in cating and drinking, and above all remember that children and horses suffer more than you, and need protection and encouragement.
